GEHRETS BODY RECOVERED

Found Within Three-quarters of a Mile from Scene of Accident.

BADLY DECOMPOSED

A Man's Dream Led to Recovery of the Body—Remains Identified by Harvey White, Wm. Kessinger and Others.

FUNERAL MONDAY AFTERNOON AT 5.

After reposing in a watery grave almost five months, the remains of Edward Gehret, of Mill Hall, the unfortunate young man who was drowned in Hayes Run on the night of January 29, were found Sunday morning in Hayes Run dam.

Our readers will probably remember the particulars of this sad affair but to refresh their memory we will recite the facts. Edward Gehret, was formerly of this place but prior to his death was a resident of Mill Hall and in the employ of the New York Central road as a member of the concrete bridge gang. About 11 o'clock on the night of January 29, 1904 with three other men he was employed tearing out the false work at No 9 bridge at Hayes Run station on the New York Central road. The water was very high and the ice was banked up against the bridge causing it to give way. Gehret was thrown into the river and drowned but the other men escaped with their lives.

The railroad company and friends of the young man searched for the body but failed to find it. Their search certainly could not have been very thorough as the body was found within three-quarters of a mile from where the accident occurred. Gehret was born in Bellefonte and was 31 years old. He leaves a wife and a little son, Samuel 4 years old.

The finding of the body at this time was due it is said to a dream which a man named Henderson of Hayes Run had a few nights ago. Henderson had been greatly impressed by the death of Gehret and had been among those who had unsuccessfully searched for the remains. A few nights ago he dreamed that he saw Gehrets body in Hayes Run dam in just the position it was afterwards found. He told his brother-in-law Aleck Lucas of Hayes Run about his dream and Sunday morning about nine o'clock they went to the spot indicated. The water was quite clear and about ten feet from the shore they could distinguish the arm and foot of a man. Lucas waded in and discovered the body of a man with head downward in the water. The head was held down by an immense stone that weighed ten or twelve hundred pounds.

Assistance was summoned but it took an hour to remove the stone and get the body to shore. The body was in a bad state of decomposition. The boundary line between Clinton and Centre is at this point and part of the body was in Clinton and part in Centre county. Word was telephoned to Mill Hall and Harvey White and Undertaker Wm. Kessinger went to the scene. White identified the remains by the clothing on the body. The face was crushed and decomposed beyond recognition. White identified the blue bathing shirt, overcoat and shoes as those of Gehret. The remains were taken charge of by Undertaker Kessinger and brought to Mill Hall where Squire William Rosser of Mill Hall acting for the Coroner of Clinton county, held an inquest and issued a burial permit.

The remains were brought to Bellefonte Monday morning and taken to the home of his brother Harry Gehret where the funeral took place Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The services were in charge of Bellefonte Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, of which deceased was a member. Interment in the Union cemetery.

Constance Becomes Unruly.

Dominick Constance, the Italian now languishing in the County Jail charged with incendiarism, became unruly on Sunday. He attacked his cell mate George Henderson, the burglar, and would probably have killed him but for the timely arrival of the jailer. He was finally beaten into submission and placed in another cell.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Business was Light--New Water Wheel Installed.

The borough council met Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock with President William Jenkins in the chair and the following members present: Derstine, Keichline, Wise, Seibert and Fenlon.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the clerk, W. T. Kelley and there being no corrections they stood approved.

Boro Solicitor Fortney, Water Sup't. Rine, Street Commissioner Shaughensey were present in their official capacities.

Chairman Derstine, of the street committee reported repairing bridge and crossings in town.

Mr Wise of the Water Improvement committee reported the installing of the new water wheel and pump at the water works. It is pumping over 100,000 gallons a day.

The boro has been offered $400 for the old Undine building on East Logan street. Its only use to the boro now is for housing the stone crusher and storing brick in. The building was built by the boro and is said to have cost $1,000. The lot is about 25 x 50 feet. The council finally decided to decline the offer of $400 for the property.

Council has a water ordinance under consideration but decided to take it up at a special meeting.

Boro Treasurer Meek made the following report through the Finance committee.

A Pretty Home Wedding.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Charles Lucas, Runville, Centre Co. Pa., June 16, 1904 at 12 M, when his youngest daughter, Miss Margaret became the wife of Mr. E. R. Lucas, of 215½ Lexington Avenue, Altoona Pa. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. G. A. Sparks, pastor of the U. B. Church, Runville, Pa. There was some of the immediate friends and relatives present. Mr. William Lucas of Runville was best man and Miss Mamie Lucas of Altoona was bride's maid, after congratulations had been received, all were invited to the dining room to partake of an elaborate dinner. The bride and groom left on the 3.55 p. m. train for Altoona, where they will make their future home. The bride is a very fine and intelligent young lady, and an active member of the U. B. Church, she is class stewart, member of W. M. A. and secretary of the Sunday School and liberally supports the various interests of the church. The groom holds a fine position with the P. R. R. at Altoona, Pa. and is a very industrious young man. The bride and groom have the best wishes of their many friends, may they have a long and pleasant life, may their pathway be strewn with many flowers over the sea of life.

MISS MARY E. PENNEY,
of Snow, Shoe.

The Most Popular School Teacher in Centre County and Winner of the Bellefonte Republican's World's Fair Contest.

MISS MARY E. PENNEY.

The Popular Snow Shoe Teacher Who Won World's Fair Contest.

In this issue we publish a picture of Miss Mary E. Penney, the bright young Snow Shoe girl, who won the contest as the most popular teacher in Centre County inaugurated by the Bellefonte Republican and who as a result will visit the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis as the guest of this paper.

Perhaps a brief word in regard to Miss Penney would not be out of place at this time. She was born in the town of Snow Shoe and comes of good old New England ancestry and retains many characteristics of that historic section.

She is the daughter of Rev. George R. Penney who is at the head a Foreign Missionary Station in the Sandwich Islands. Her grand father was the late Rev. M. L. Jackson with whom together with her mother and sister, Flora, she has made her home and who guided and directed her education.

She received her early education at Snow Shoe graduating from the High School there with the class of 1898. She afterwards attended the Spring Mills Academy where she prepared for teaching.

Her career as a teacher has been a very successful one. Her strong personality combined with an intuitive perception of the hidden springs that guide childrens conduct and thoughts enables her to size up and express just the facts and illustrations which coincide with the half formed ideas in the minds of the pupils and thus lead them in her favor. Last term she taught the Snow Shoe Primary school giving perfect satisfaction as is attested by the result of this contest. Her pupils are all very much attached to her.

MISS PENNEY EXPRESSES THANKS

Mary E. Penney wishes hereby to express her sincere thanks to all who in any way aided in winning for her the World's Fair Contest.

Feeling this but poorly expresses her gratitude, she will endeavor to further prove same by making the best of the privileges thus afforded her, hoping to gather much that will be of profit to the pupils whom she may instruct in the future.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

Frank Cole, of Matternville, Dies on Way Home from Work.

Frank Cole, of Matternville, who was employed in the Scotia ore banks, dropped dead Monday evening about 6:30 o'clock while on his way home from work. His body was found about 9 o'clock last evening in a strip of woods on the Robert Gray farm, now occupied by John B. Carson.

Mr. Cole usually reached home about 6:30 and when he did not arrive at the usual time, his wife supposed he had been detained a little later than usual. However as the hours went by and he did not come she became anxious and informed her neighbors about it. John Stine and Thomas Burns, of Waddle, started in search of Cole and found him lying face downward on the path in Carson's woods. Squire Mattern was sent for and he empanelled a jury and held an inquest. The verdict rendered was that he died from an epileptic fit.

Frank Cole was born in Bellefonte 27 years ago and was the son of Architect Robert Cole, of this place. He leaves a wife and two children. Also two sisters, Mrs. John Barnhart, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Walter Edmundson, of State College.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment at Meyers cemetery.

Death of Wm. L. Grubb.

William L. Grubb, a former Centre Countian, died in Clearfield on Monday morning about 7:30

He will be buried at Milesburg on this afternoon. He was a member of the Order of United American Mechanics and they are requested to turn out at the funeral.

THE 4TH AT STATE.

Alpha Fire Company Preparing for a Big Time.

State College is to have a Fourth of July Celebration. It will be under the auspices of the Alpha Fire Company and that is a sure guarantee that it will be a big success.

There will be a great big fantastic parade and several bands of music. A prize will be given to the best fantastic.

There will also be an exciting ball game between the Fats and the Lean's. There will be a fat man's race, potato race, sack race, wheelbarrow race, pie eating contest, greased pig contest and comic foot racee. There will be a grand balloon ascension and magnificent display of fire works at night.

No doubt there will be an immenese crowd at State on the Fourth.

Narrowly Escaped Losing an eye.

On Sunday morning J. Kennedy Johnston Esq., narrowly escaped the loss of an eye. Mr. Johnston, in common with some of his neighbors has been considerably bothered with rats around his premises. Sunday morning he got after one of the rodents with a club. Seeing that he was not meeting with great success in his efforts to capture the four footed pest, Mrs. Harvey Schaeffer who lives next door offered him the loan of a small target gun. He accepted the offer and when firing the second shot at the rat, the bullet re-bound and struck him within an inch of the right eye. It made a painful flesh wound. Mr. Johnston had glasses on at the time and had the bullet struck the glass it would have undoubtedly caused the loss of sight to his right eye.

Moral—Never shoot rats on Sunday. Set a trap for them.

TWO VILLAINS.

Ransack an Altoona House, Lash Woman to a Chair, set Fire to the Place.

About 1 o'clock Friday afternoon two young men, on the pretense that they wanted to rent a room got into the kitchen of the home of Mrs. Barbara Young, 1310 Twelfth avenue, Altoona, and leveling a revolver on the woman compelled her not to give any alarm while they proceeded to ransack the place for money, forcing the woman to go up stairs and about the house with them as they kept up the search for money. Not finding any they finally bound the woman to a chair in a lower room and then gutted drawers, turned pockets of clothing inside out and hunted in every corner of the establishment, finally tearing the clothing nearly off the woman to get at a pocket in her skirt where they found a purse containing a small amount of change. One of the men then hit the woman two blows in the heart causing her to lapse into a partially unconscious condition.

But to make their work still more dastardly they set fire to the bed clothing in two places in the upper part of house and set a match to some loose stuff on the unfinished attic. They then left the house. Shortly after smoke was seen issuing from the upper windows, the house was entered by citizens the cord that lashed the woman to the chair cut, and finally the fire extinguished, the damage by fire and water amounting to about $300. The woman was removed to the home of a neighbor where she has partly recovered from her fright and the heavy blows dealt by the brute. The police are searching for the villains, but without success in finding a clue to their whereabouts thus far.

WESLEY GRAY.

Death of a Prominent Citizen of Half Moon Township.

Friday morning at 9 o'clock Wesley Gray, one of Half Moon township's leading citizens, passed away at his home in that township. Two weeks ago he was stricken with paralysis and remained in an unconscious condition up until the time of his death.

The deceased belonged to one of the pioneer families of Half Moon township, his ancestors being among the early settlers of the county. He was born within sight of where he died and was 74 years of age. He was a farmer and was a progressive citizen and a member of the Methodist church.

He is survived by his wife and the following children, Mrs. Frank Clemson, of Buffalo Run; Herbert and Ethel at home.

He also leaves two brothers. Dr. J. Edward Gray, of Williamsport, president of Dickinson Seminary, and Green Gray, of Stormstown.

The funeral took place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Eslinger, of Stormstown, officiated. Interment in Gray's cemetery

Childrens Day at the Presbyterian Church.

The Children's Day Services at the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning far excelled any held in the past by this Sunday School.

The grand old edifice was filled to the doors, many people were turned away. The interior was a dell of flowers and ferns, and from the rail of choir box to the front of the pulpit there was a beautiful canopy of ferns, spruce and laurel. The choir of 75 voices beautifully blended in singing the special music that had been prepared for this occasion. The Scholars in the Junior School were perfect in their recitations and singing, and showed the earnest effort that must have beed made by Miss Overton and her corps of efficient assistants in having the children trained as they were. The large orchestra was another grand features on this occasion and was greatly appreciated.

Death of Frank Bohn.

Mr. Frank Bohn a prominent College Township farmer passed peacefully away Wednesday June 15 at 2 o'clock after a months illness with stomach trouble. The deceased was aged about 50 years, a sincere christian, a kind and indulgent husband and father and leaves to mourn their loss a wife and 4 children, also the following brothers and sister: David Bohn, of Boalsburg, William Bohn, of Ohio, and Mrs. George Bradford, of Centre Hall.

The funeral took place from the Reformed church of which he was a life long member Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. A. A. Black officiating. Interment in the Boalsburg cemetery.

CONSTANCE INTERVIEWED

Denies That He Attempted to Burn Rothrock Home.

NOT NEAR THE PLACE

Attended a Christening Sunday And Retired to His Bunk in the Shanty Early--Shoes in Possession of Authorities Belonged to His Brother.

MISS MATTIE ROTHROCK AT DU BOIS

One of the most disastardly crimes that has ever been perpetrated in Centre county was the partially successful attempt last Sunday night to burn the farm house of Justice-of-the Peace David Rothrock, who resides about four miles west of Bellefonte along the Buffalo Run road. Think of a farmer going for a doctor at midnight, finding the home of a neighbor fast being enveloped in flames, the family an aged couple, their invalid son and little grand-child in danger of being incinerated; add to this fact that a man is seen sneaking away through the garden, that the house had been splashed with kerosene before the match was applied and you have the outline of a most diabolical crime. Such are the facts in this case.

Suspicion at once pointed to a young Italian named John Dominic Constance, who had recently been released from jail for having attempted to shoot Mr. Rothrock.

The Italian in question, during the past year, had been getting his milk and eggs and other provisions from the Rothrock family, and in consequence became fairly well acquainted with every member of the family, especially with David Rothrock, the father of the household [illegible] three score and a half years old.

It was on the 27th of last September when Constance came to the house and asked Mr. Rothrock for the hand of his daughter, Mattie. The father was so much exorcised over the idea of such an unreasonable request that tart words naturally followed. It was then and there that the Italian whipped out his revolver and fired two shots at Mr. Rothrock, one of the balls barely missing the aged man's head. The Italian was promptly arrested, subsequently tried, convicted and sentenced to five months in jail. The night of the very day his sentence expired and his release was brought about the Rothrock barn was destroyed with all its contents, and now comes the third chapter in the unpleasantness.

The affair has created such wide spread interest that the Republican determined to interview the gentleman whom it is alleged has caused all this trouble. Accordingly a reporter for this paper visited the jail Friday morning and through the kindness of Sheriff Taylor and Turnkey Jerry Condo he was conducted to the steel cell where Constance is confined and permitted a half hour interview with him. Constance is a good looking young fellow about 5 feet 8 inches tall, with black hair and black eyes. He gave his age as 23 and said he had been in this country about three years. He came to this country from Sammanco, Italy, where he was born and where his parents still live. In broken english he stoutly denied his guilt claiming that he did not know when arrested what he was charged with. Sunday his brother's child was christened and they had a big time at the shanty where he stays. There was beer, music and a general good time. Sunday night when the fire at Rothrock's occurred he retired early and was not out of the shanty until morning. Monday afternoon when arrested he was on his way to Edward Longwells, the butcher's house, where he was going to buy the weeks supply of meat for the shanty. He said that he had been very sick and under a doctors hands ever since he had been released from jail and that he had never been near the Rothrock place since that time. It was about 4 o'clock when he was arrested. His brother, sister and brother-in-law and several other Italians live in the same shanty and most of them are employed by the Centre County Lime

We know of a dozen evergreen windbreaks, now ten years old, which are valued at $1,000 by the men who planted them. None of them cost over $50 to set out.

If a man could only make as much money out of the cow by letting the calf suck her as he can by milking her it would greatly tend to solve the dairy problem.

The state of Missouri will send to the world's fair at St. Louis a four inch section of a monster cypress tree growing in that state. It is twelve feet in diameter.

We never until this year heard of a swarm of bees starting out on a hunt for a location early in April, when winter still had a good grip, but this spring a swarm took possession of a vacant space in a cream hauler's wagon thus early in the season.

If a man can secure a good tenant on a term of years the farm so rented, if let on shares, will one year with another bring in a much better income for the landlords than where it is rented for cash, but one needs the right sort of tenant and the long lease.

Not many people keep poultry with profit in town. The range is so circumscribed, all food has to be bought, and unless great care is taken the enforced confinement impairs the laying ability of the fowls. A dozen hens may perhaps be profitably kept on the average town premises, but not many more.

The problem of what to do with the old and faithful horse that has outlived his usefulness and become an expense to keep is a very common one. Some trade him to a horse jockey; some let him live and starve; some finish him up with hard work. Better by far humanely kill the old servant.

The highways in many parts of Germany are lined with handsome rows of fruit trees. Their product is protected by law and when fit to pick is sold at auction and the proceeds devoted to the improvement of the highway. The European does some things better than the American.

If you want to realize what the development of the cold storage industry has done for the country recall the time a few years ago when your April and May eggs sold for 6 cents a dozen and the best butter you could make for 10 cents a pound. Cold storage has doubled the price to the producer of both commodities.

All through the corn belt it is now well settled that the silo offers the cheapest and most economical method of getting all the value out of the corn crop and securing a supply of succulent winter forage for the stock on the farm. This truth makes headway slowly, but the time is coming when the silo will be an accompaniment of the big red barn on every well managed western farm.

A Chicago florist who was a candidate for alderman of that city did an altogether unique thing on Easter Sunday to propitiate the voters of his ward. He lavishly decorated the twenty-nine churches in his ward with the choicest floral wealth of his greenhouses and saw to it that every man, woman and child received a carnation. This is ever so much nicer than tapping a lot of pony kegs.

Good beef sold for a cent a pound in the reign of Queen Elizabeth in England. Pork sold at the same price, a chicken at 2 cents and a fat goose at 8 cents. That was before the days of knives and forks, chimneys for the houses, glass for windows, guns and gunpowder, and when every man had to provide his own armor, pike and bow and arrow and be ready on a moment's warning to join the army. This was when the courts hung a man for stealing as small a sum as $2.50, or a sheep, or for killing game on the baron's estate.

Birds have almost as hard a time making a final selection of a place in which to build a nest as some folks do in hunting a house to live in. We watched a robin the other day engaged in hunting a place for a nest. He (it was the male bird) was engaged in sizing up the crotch of a small elm tree. He got into the crotch to see if it was large enough to hold the nest, turned round and round, flew off several times and came back, finally went off and returned with his mate, and together they evidently discussed the matter just as humans would. They went off and returned three days later and commenced building the nest after looking up other locations probably.

The war in the far east will cut off the supply of butter from Russia, and the countries which she has been supplying will have to import 20,000 tons from the United States and Canada to take its place.

It is a rather curious trait in the dog that when he falls into the habit of killing and worrying flocks of sheep he will never do his work near home. He will almost invariably travel several miles for his victims.

When the white fronted and snow geese are seen migrating northward, there is always warm weather not far behind them. They are the most reliable of all wild fowl in this particular.

Peaches and plums from Cape Town were to be had on the Cleveland (O.) market fresh and nice, brought from Africa in cold storage, this during February, which is the South African fall of the year.

There is nothing now here or ever likely to be here in the line of transportation which can compete with a trolley car which will stop at any farmhouse and take on the farmer's wife and her basket of eggs.

Tastes differ much in the matter of flowers. For us we like the canna, a geranium bed, a group of branching asters, by all means a bed of salvias, pansies and nasturtiums. There are many others, but these will always reward one.

Put 15,000,000 people in the state of Kansas, heathen and idol worshipers, ignorant and superstitious, governed by a despotism, unskilled in agriculture, and in climate, size of territory, population, development and government you will have the kingdom of Korea.

Cuba raised a magnificent crop of high grade tobacco the past year, so much that the shed room for the curing was totally inadequate, and in some cases the people moved from their houses and lived in tents in order that they might use their homes for curing the crop.

It is an interesting fact in nature that the pollen and the silk of the corn plant are so arranged in the order of their development that they are never in conjunction—that is, it is made almost impossible for the plant to fertilize itself, the pollen from one plant being used to fertilize the silk of some adjacent plant.

The birds are not always wise. A few days since we noted a pair of sparrows engaged in constructing a nest in a crevice between the big rocks forming the abutment to a bridge crossing a river. The first rise in the river will inundate their nest and destroy it. Theoretically these birds should have known better, yet, after all, they were no bigger fools than lots of men we know.

Much interest and discussion is being taken in the plan of teaching the elementary principles of agriculture in the country schools. The plan has much to commend it. Plant and animal life studies always interest the little folks.

We have a friend who always sows clover seed with all his small grain crops. We do not know just what his regular course of rotation is, but we do know that he has a wonderfully productive farm, and it has been under cultivation for sixty years.

Comparisons sometimes help one to feel more contented with his lot in life. It would be hard to find any ablebodied man in this country who earned so small a sum as $50 a year and fed himself and family with it, but China and India have such people by the hundred million.

Alfalfa and trolley railways are regenerating the state of Ohio—the alfalfa is restoring the lost fertility of the soil and the trolley is making life in the country accessible to the people, with all its advantages. Indiana, Illinois and Iowa are beginning the good work too.

The minimum rates of transportation are about reached by the great railway corporations of the country. They can hardly further improve the physical condition of their systems by eliminating grades, using bigger engines or larger freight cars so as to much further lower freight rates.

A New York reader wishes to know how to put up grated horseradish at home and have it retain its color as well as that which is put up by the professional canners. We cannot answer his query further than to say that the discoloration referred to is doubtless due to the imperfect exclusion of the air.

We are just now using a last September cheese cured in cold storage, and its superlative texture and quality are most convincing evidence of this new method of curing cheese. Nothing could have improved it save keeping it six months longer under the same conditions.

It is utterly useless to expect a good quality of beef from the old cow, no matter how well she may be fattened. There is a certain maternal and ancient toughness, a sort of sole leather fibrous texture, inherent in all such beef which needs a famine appetite and an unblemished set of molars to handle.

DRAINAGE AND DROUGHTS.

An Omaha reader takes exception to our statement that the drainage of marshes and lakes in no perceptible degree diminishes the rainfall of the territory where located and that the cultivation of a semiarid region in no way increases the rainfall, and he presents some plausible arguments to show that our contention is wrong. Here are a few facts for our friend to consider: Lower California is an arid desert. Still it has the Pacific ocean on one side and the gulf on the other. Why should it be dry when such an enormous evaporation under a tropical sun is always in operation? The records show conclusively that in all the territory west of the one hundredth degree of west longitude the settlement of the country and the cultivation of the soil have in no manner increased the average rainfall. Take the Mississippi valley, the territory which this statement is intended to cover, and where does the water come from which makes up the average of thirty to thirty-five inches per annum which the states of Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri receive? Take the state of Iowa, to illustrate. To give this state one inch of rain would require the evaporation of the water of a lake 20 by 27½ miles in area and 8 feet in depth or a river a mile wide, 8 feet deep and 550 miles in length. The yearly rainfall of 31 inches in that state would make a lake 110 miles long, 50 miles wide and 26 feet deep, and if all the water in all the rivers, creeks, lakes, ponds and sloughs in the state was vaporized and returned to the earth in the form of rain it would give less than an inch of rainfall, just a good sprinkle or dew, and that's all. Now, whence comes the rainfall we get? From the gulf of Mexico. The Mississippi valley, if one could see it pictured out in relief, would be seen to be a vast trough reaching from northern Minnesota to the gulf of Mexico, up which the moisture laden clouds are driven by the south winds, assuring a permanent and reliable rainfall and making the valley the garden spot of America. Had there been a range of mountains like the Rockies flung across the lower part of this valley all that part of it which lay at the north would have been an arid desert. For the past two years all the northern part of this valley, better drained than it has ever been before—millions of acres of swamp lands reclaimed by drainage and put under cultivation, and lake beds converted into cornfields—has been deluged with such an excess of rainfall that all the drainage done was utterly insufficient to dispose of the surplus water. It is now well settled that timber grows in any given territory because it rains there and that it does not rain because the timber grows. The facts justify a repetition of the phrase, "While drainage will dry up the earth it will not dry up the heavens," for the reasons above stated.

THE SANDY FARM.

A friend writes us that last winter he was persuaded to buy a sandy farm, when the ground was covered with snow, on the representation of the owner that it was a good piece of land. When the snow went off he made the discovery that instead of being good soil it was sandy and almost worthless for cultivation. The funny thing was that he was inclined to take the seller's word as to the quality of the soil because the man, his wife and twelve children had made a living on the farm for three years previously. Our friend wants to know what to do with this poor soil. We have before said that a sandy farm was by all odds the hardest sort of a farm proposition to handle. The wet farm can be drained, the stump and stony farm can be cleared, the stiff clay farm can be rendered productive by clover, manure and pasture. In Wisconsin the owners of sandy farms are meeting with some success by growing clover, rye and potatoes. By a clover rotation every fifth year sufficient humus and fertility are worked into the sand so that it will grow a good crop of potatoes once in five years. We know of nothing better than clover, or possibly alfalfa, to use to get such soils into a productive shape.

TRAMPS AND STARVATION.

A friend is disposed to criticise our starvation remedy for the tramp nuisance as un-Christian. Desperate diseases demand heroic treatment. The money changers were scourged out of the temple, not coaxed or invited; the scribes and lawyers were anathematized, not pleaded with; Ananias was struck dead for lying. The average tramp is in no sense the product of unhealthy economic conditions, but just a parasite who will live on the labor of others just so long as they will let him—just hungry because he is lazy, just lazy because he hates to work, just unclean and repulsive because, with human intelligence degraded, he lacks an animal instinct to take its place.

The people will always look with suspicion upon any line of business which is able by law to make prices both ways—buying and selling. This fact is what is causing the government investigation into the methods of the so called beef trust. It arbitrarily fixes both the price of the fat steer on the hoof and every commodity which is made from him. It is enough to let a fellow fix the price one way.

HISTORY OF THE ANCHOR.

Various Improvements That Have Been Made In Its Shape.

The ships' anchors in general used up to the beginning of the last century consisted of a long, round iron shank, having two comparatively short, straight arms or flukes, inclined to the shank at an angle of about 40 degrees and meeting it in a somewhat sharp point at the crown. In large anchors the bulky wooden stock was built up of several pieces, hooped together, the whole tapering outward to the ends, especially on the aft or cable side. About the beginning of the last century a clerk in the Plymouth naval yard, Pering by name, suggested certain improvements, the most important of which was making the arms curved instead of straight. At first sight this simple change may seem of little value, but consideration will show that this is not the case. The holding power of an anchor depends on two principal conditions—namely, the extent of useful holding surface and the amount of vertical penetration. The latter quality is necessary on account of the nature of ordinary sea bottoms, the surface layers of which are generally less tenacious and resisting than is the ground a short distance below.

In the year 1831 chain cables began to supersede the hempen ones, with the result that the long shanked anchors hitherto in vogue were no longer necessary, and anchors with shorter shanks and with heavier and stronger crowns gradually came into use. In consequence of these changes a commission was appointed in the year 1838 to inquire into the holding power of anchors, and a principal result of its labors was the adoption of the so called admiralty pattern anchor, which continued to be used in the navy up to the year 1860. The invention of the steam hammer in 1842 made the welding of heavy masses of iron a comparatively easy and reliable process, so that from this time onward the strength of anchors fully kept pace with that of the chain cables which had come into general use.

A number of patents for anchors were taken out prior to the great exhibition of 1851, and, public attention having been called to the models there shown, in the following year a committee was appointed by the admiralty to report on the qualifications of anchors of the various kinds. Practical trials were then instituted, and as a result Trotman's anchor took the highest place, Rodger's anchor being second on the list. Some of the tests to which the anchors were submitted were of doubtful value, such, for instance, as "facility for sweeping." Nowadays, however, at all events for deep ships in shallow harbors, it is considered an advantage for an anchor to offer as little obstruction as possible above ground.—Science Siftings.

A Hint to Papa.

Twenty times William Archibald Stewart had been forbidden to cross the trolley tracks to buy candy, and twenty times William Archibald Stewart had disobeyed. Patience had ceased to be a virtue with William Stewart's father.

"Don't be too hard on him," the mother pleaded.

But William's father had his dander up and his rattan ready as he summoned the culprit into his august presence.

"Willie," he said, "how many times have you been forbidden to cross the trolley tracks to buy candy?"

William did not answer, but stood with head lowered and hands ready to press to his eyes.

"Don't you know it hurts papa even more than it does you to have to punish his little boy? Now, suppose you had a little boy and you had told him twenty times not to cross the trolley tracks, and suppose he disobeyed you—what would you do with him?"

William swallowed a lump in his throat and threw back his shoulders with a visible effort.

"Papa," he said, "I don't think I'd like it. But—but I'd—I'd try everything in this world before I'd lick my child!"—New York Press.

He Had a Daughter.

"You have a daughter, have you not, sir?" said a minister to an old gentleman with whom he had formed a casual acquaintance as a fellow passenger.

The old gentleman essayed to answer, but the question had strangely affected him.

"I beg your pardon," said the minister, "if I have thoughtlessly awakened in your mind recollections of a painful nature. The world is full of sorrow, sir, and perhaps my question recalls to your memory a fair, beautiful girl whose blossoming young life had withered in its bloom. Am I right, sir?"

"No, not exactly," replied the old gentleman sadly. "I have five unmarried darters, mister, an' the youngest of the lot is twenty-eight years old."

The Teacher's Fault.

Teacher—Why, Freddy, how did you get those black and blue welts on your arm?

Scholar—Them's your fault, teacher.

Teacher—My fault? What do you mean?

Scholar (sobbing reminiscently)—Why, you told me it was a poor rule that didn't work both ways. So when I went home I took pa's new two foot rule that doubles up on a hinge and bent it back till it worked both ways, and then pa said I'd broken the joints, and he went and got his razor strop.

A DAY AT THE FAIR.

Interesting Letter from Our Special Correspondent at St. Louis.

To do the U. S. Government building thoroughly will take one three full days, if not more. There are many fine exhibits there, one of the most interesting being a mint in operation. Only pennies and copper souvenirs are turned out, but the whole process of making money is shown, and one need only remember that other denominations of money are made in the same way, the only difference being in the material used. Just a word here about seeing the mint Time your visit so that you will not get there just at noon or at five o'clock; for the men who operate it are government servants, and work government hours, and at exactly 12 m and 5 o'clock p. m., the whistle says it is time to stop work and work is accordingly stopped.

A few feet from the mint are two covered wagons, one of them having been used by Gen. Thomas during the civil war, and the other having carried Gen. Sherman in his famous march to the sea Both are old and weather beaten but still look as if they yet could go for many a mile, so solidly have they been built.

An interesting exhibit in this building is that of all the methods of transporting mail in the United States. Each method is shown, from the dog-sledge of Alaska with its fur-covered driver to that of the improved mail-car that goes at the rate of sixty miles an hour. The old stage-coach, that made the perilous trip over the mountains with mail and express and that has been through many a hold-up, in its day, is also there.

Those who have not had the opportunity of going over a modern battleship, will derive a great deal of pleasure as well as instruction from the reproduction of one in the government exhibit.

The Smithsonian Institute is also finely represented in the way of stuffed animals and birds, skeletons of mastodons etc. Suspended from the ceiling of the building is a monster whale which is an exact reproducti / of one in the institute at Washington, D. C.

The German exhibits at the Fair are great beyond description. In the medical exhibit in the Palace of Education one may plainly see why Germany leads the world in medicine and surgery.

The German building, a reproduction of the castle of Charlottenburg, is a stately edifice and the grounds around it are artistically planned.

The German Tyrolean Alps, at the entrance of the grounds, is considered one of the prettiest sights of the Fair. The buildings represent a village in the Alps, and from a distance it is hard to believe that those towering, snow-capped mountains with their slopes covered with evergreens, are the work of man. So nicely have nature and art been blended, it is almost impossible to tell where the one ends and the other begins. The Tyrolean Alps are beautiful, and one feels sad to know that all this beauty is simply an advertisement for Anhauser Busch beer, for which St. Louis is noted. The owner of the Alps has spent thousands of dollars in reproducing his birth place in Germany, and the public feels greatful to him for the glimpse of the beautiful he has given it, although it has been done for such an unworthy cause. Do not miss the Alps, by all means, for one may go all over the village, without so much as seeing a glass of beer. and the scenery within is well worth the time and money spent on it.

A grain of sand in the eye can cause excruciating agony. A grain of pepper in place of the grain of sand intensifies the torment. The pain is not confined to the organs affected. The whole body feels the shock of that little irritating particle. It is so when there is any derangement or disorder of the delicate womanly organs. The disorder may seem trivial but the whole body feels it The nervous system is disordered. There are fretfulness, irritability, sullenness and depression of spirits. The general health of woman depends on the local health of the organs peculiarly feminine. Remove the drains, ulcerations, bearing down pains, and other afflictions of woman, and the whole body feels the benefit. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a specific for the diseases that undermine the strength of woman. Ginseng A Profitable Crop.

For the past five years the writer has devoted a great deal of time to the study of profit bearing crops and next to the Rubber Industry of South America there is nothing I have seen so profitable as the culture of Ginseng.

After reading the Government Statistics concerning the plant, I wrote to Mr. W. A Batee, Cuba, N. Y. stating the object I had in view and asking for such information as he could give me. In reply I received a work on "Ginseng" written by himself and also an invitation to visit his garden.

It is not my purpose in this brief article to give a description of his garden, but rather to show what profit there is in the business; in order that many who are in ignorance of this valuable product may have their eyes opened to it and perhaps join in swelling the amount annually exported to China, and incidentally assist in creating a new source of wealth for the agricultural communities of the United States.

The amount of Ginseng which can be annually exported to China without overstocking the market is reported by U. S. Consul Johnson who made a very exhaustive examination of the subject, to be over $20,000,000 worth. Now as the United States has never exported Ginseng to the extent of $1,000,000 annually, it will readily be seen that the field for an extensive and lucrative business is open to those who are sharp enough to avail themselves of the advice of those who are posted on this subject.

Ginseng grows in the rich and damp but not wet or muddy soils, such as prevails in hardwood forests, and it is found wild in the following states:—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky, Tenessee, Arkansas, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Missouri, but by cultivation and a proper treatment of the various soils, this natural range can be greatly increased, in fact it can be grown almost anywhere in the temperate zone.

From figures furnished by Mr. Bates the following, showing how an acre of Ginseng can be started from 2.000 fine selected seed bearing roots planted in 1904 and figured for a period of five years, is more than justified by the results of his garden.

These 2,000 plants should average 20 seeds to the plant summer of 1905 and 50 seeds to the plant each following year: first year 40,000 seeds; second year 100,000 seeds. As it takes 18 months for Ginseng seed to germinate seeds of 1905 crop will produce plants spring of 1907; seeds of 1906 crop will produce plants spring of 1908, seeds of 1907 crop will produce plants spring of 1909, and at the end of this period of time you should have 200,000 growing plants, allowing 40,000 seeds for loss, besides having the 1903 and 1909 crops of seed on hand. and the 2,000 roots you began with, figured on the same basis as above viz., 2 ozs. to the root would give you 83½ lbs dry root figured at $9.00 per lb. would make a total of $750.00 cash, 200,000 growing plants or an acre and 200,000 seeds on hand.

In speaking of Ginseng Mr. Bates says: "Anyone can start in the business who has a will and a plot of ground. I have started quite a number with a few seeds and roots from my garden, who are today in a position to realize a comfortable fortune therefrom, in the next few years.

By the courtesy of Mr. Bates whom I have always found to be willing to assist others in the business of procuring a start I am enableed to show a bed (4ftx186ft.) of five year old plants, ready to harvest as soon as the seed falls, which will realize at market prices about $3400.00 or as much as the entire income from a large farm planted to ordinary crops.

This should cause readers to pause and consider the propriety of planting, at least, a small lot.

The expense attached to an experimental bed is so trivial that no one can afford to neglect this matter.

600 Persons Perish in East River.

NEW YORK, June 16.—One of the most appalling disasters in the history of New York, tragic in its immensity, dramatic in its episodes and deeply pathetic in the tender age of most of its victims, took place yesterday in the East river, at the entrance to Long Island Sound, within a short distance of the New York shore and within sight of thousands of persons, the majority of whom were powerless to minimize the extent of the catastrophe.

By the burning at the water's edge of the General Slocum, a three-decked excursion steamer, the largest in these waters, more than 600 persons, the majority of whom were women and children, were burned to death or drowned by jumping overboard, or by being thrown into the whirlpools by the lurching of the vessel, and the frantic rush of the panic-stricken passengers.

Approximately 500 bodies have been recovered and are now being tagged at the morgues of Bellevue hospital and Harlem. Divers were still busy at a late hour taking bodies from the hold of the vessel, which they say is choked with the remains of human beings, while the bodies of scores who leaped or were thrown into the river have not been recovered.

The race to North Brothers Island was horribly dramatic. It was made while the flames, which had been fanned into a fury by the strong head wind, were consuming hundreds of persons, young and old. The scene was one of frightful panic, with men, women and children jumping overboard and being lashed by the channel whirlpools against the vessel's sides. Women and children were crowded together on the hurricane deck, which soon burned away and fell, and it is believed that most of those on this deck were burned.

Those Toy Pistols.

The large number of deaths last year from tetanus due to premature discharges of Fourth of July toy pistols has caused the state board of health to take decisive steps to prevent the sale of these death-dealing weapons.

Although Independence day is less than three weeks distant, it might be well to remind dealers that the sale of revolvers and blank cartridges to children under sixteen years of age is prohibited by law and that a penalty of $50 to $100 is liable for each offense.

The Fourth can be fittingly celebrated without the discharge of toy pistols and other dangerous firearms. Parents should give a little heed to the dangerous toys they allow their children to celebrate the day with. The toy pistol is particularly destructive to young patriots and should be tabooed everywhere.

Other People's Mail.

The authorities at Washington have fixed a penalty of $200 on any one taking mail out of the postoffice other than their own. All postmasters are liable to mistakes and get the mail in the wrong boxes, and the law says that the people must examine their mail before leaving the office, and if they have mail other than their own, it must be returned at once. That it is the fault of the postmaster makes no difference. The law includes newspapers as well as first-class mail.

THE GOOD ROADS QUESTION.

Bad Roads Are Not Only Expensive But They Are Unlawful.

If the Daily News did not believe it would pay a township anywhere in the state of Pennsylvania to take advantage and secure as much help each year from the public treasury as could possibly be gotten for the building of first class roads under the new road law it would not advocate and urge the matter. How could it be otherwise than profitable to the township when it must bear only the one-sixth of the expense. Besides providing for the payment of much more than half the expense by the state for the building of substantial, lasting, safe and comfortable roads, the law provides for the punishment of supervisors who neglect to keep the township roads in good order. Though now very slow about taking advantage of the splendid chance for securing good roads everywhere in the course of time, we predict that within five years the rush and demand for help by the state will far exceed the amount that can be secured each year, as there is a maximum limit for draft upon the treasury.

This paper has in course of preparation a series of articles on this question and it propose to hammer away at the people until they take an interest in this question.

As to the saving to farmers through the medium of roads properly built the following from the Philadelphia Press will interest Daily News readers:

"The Agricultural department at Washington figures that it costs the farmers of this country $950,000,000 a year to move their products to the railway stations. This is a mighty sum and offers a good basis for economy by reducing the cost of transportation. This can be done by road improvement. If good roads were universal, if the dusty, miry, rutty, rough, ill-graded roads were abolished and smooth, well graded, improved roads substituted the cost of transporting products on the highways of the country would be cut down two-thirds. This would be equivalent to a cash distribution among the farmers of the country of over $600,000,000 annually, as it would diminish their present outlay by that sum.

"This is a striking demonstration of the money value of good roads to that class which uses them most and is most dependent upon them. The farmers look at the cost of building good roads and at their share of the cost and many of them consider nothing else. That good roads will connect them with their market at all seasons of the year, without interruption; that it will increase the capacity of all their wagons and the drawing power of all their horses; that it will decrease the cost of getting their products to market on the average two-thirds, as the Agricultural department estimates, are points the farmers who oppose the good roads improvement because of the increase of their taxes to not sufficiently consider,

"With State and county aid, the cost of improved roads to the farmer is reduced to a fraction of the total cost, while the benefit comes to him without diminution or reduction. It is not the railroads that eat up the farmers' profits, but the mud roads. Give the farmer rapid, smooth and easy transit on improved roads from the farm to the railway station and he will at once begin to get a rebate on the $600,000,000 now wasted by him on bad roads."

WOMEN'S SYMPATHY

Mrs. L. A. Miles of High street says: "I was very much troubled with my back and with rheumatism. My rest was very much broken from nervousness and the kidney secretions embarrassed me when my back was aching badly. I was told about Doan's Kidney Pills by a woman who came 17 miles to get them and she appeared surprised that I was not acquainted with their merits, I immediately went to the Bush Block drug store and got them. Well, they did any amount of good. I was astonished at the result of their use for the pain and lameness soon left me. They also banished the tired feeling I had mornings. The Early Closing Movement.

The Somerset Herald says:—The early closing movement set on foot by a number of the merchants and business men of the town should meet with the hearty approval of the public generally. It has been proposed to close all stores during the months of July, August and September at 6 o'clock every evening, save Monday and Saturday, when they can be kept open as late as midnight, at the will of the proprietor. A majority of the merchants have subscribed to an agreement to this effect, but there are a few holding the matter up for reasons best known to themselves. It is urged in behalf of the early closing movement that it will give proprietors and clerks, who go to work at seven o'clock in the morning, an opportunity to enjoy an occasional evening recreation, as well as a chance to cultivate the society of their wives and children. The business public soon accustomed itself to the hours established by the banking institutions, all of which close at three o'clock in the afternoon, and there is no reason why it should not accustom itself to shopping in daylight. —Is Bellefonte going to do the wise act also?

—It's a mistake to imagine that itching piles can't be cured; a mistake to suffer a day longer than you can help. Doan's Ointment brings instant relief and permanent cure. At any drug store 50 cents.

CONTEST NOW OPEN.

DuBois Journal

While the political campaign in Clearfield county is as yet not on in earnest as between the two parties, that of old Centre is now fairly launched. The democrats had their county convention last week and the Republicans selected their county candidates in convention Tuesday of this week.

Judge John G. Love, the present incumbent, was nominated for re-election without a single dissenting vote either at the primaries or in the convention. If such a unanimity of assent among all the Republican voters of that county means anything at all, it means distinctly that Judge Love will succeed himself without difficulty. The Democrats of Centre had been building up hopes from the result in Clearfield last year, but the revulsion of feeling existing in this county since Judge Smith's donning of the official robes at Clearfield will permeate all through Centre county.

Were the Judical election of Clearfield county to take place this coming November, after all that has been learned and experienced here since January last, the vote on President Judge would present quite a different aspect from what it did last November. The voters, and especially those of the Republican faith, see quite differently now, and since many of them were formerly from Centre county, now residents of this county, they will naturallysend a soft but very distinct whisper to their former neighbors and friends across the line, saying: "Don't make the mistake we did. Keep on the bench the man who has been tried and never found wanting. We thought we wanted a change, we got it and are most everlastingly tired of it. We warn you not to make the same mistake we did."

This will be the sentiment and it comes from a sorely disappointed political idea of a year ago.

Let Centre county beware.

EVER EQUAL TO EMERGENCY.

A Democratic paper refers to the death, within a few years, of McKinley, Reed and Hanna, says "the Republican party has no leaders to take their places. This line of comment, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, shows a defective comprehension of the basis of the Republican party, which is principle, sound and virile principle; and that as history teaches may always be trusted to bring capable leaders to the front. Statesmen pass away, some in the fullness of years, and others at the post of duty, but the vacancies are suitably filled as circumstances may demand. Republicanism is a system of upright, enlightened government, not an organization resting on the personal qualities, however great, of individuals. At its birth the Republican party knew nothing of its ablest leader, but in six years singled him out and made him the war president.

It was the intuition of the American people, acting through the medium of the best party, that, in a remarkably short period, discovered Abraham Lincoln and placed the helm of the nation in his hands. No party that is truly great, that represents the high cause of truth and civilized progress, will ever lack leaders. No such gap can exitt in the onward march of mankind. But a party that has no issues can have no leaders except such as war with each other. Effective leadership in a party at least presupposes unity on principles. On that score Republicans are content; but how is it with the opposition?

The Republican National Convention.

The Republican National convention was held at Chicago, Ill., Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Elihu Root, of New York, was temporary chairman and Joseph Cannon, of Illnois, permanent chairman. Frank S. Black of New York placed in nomination the name of Theodore Roosevelt for President of the United States and he was nominated by acclamation. Charles W. Fairbanks, the brilliant Indiana Senator, was named as his running mate.

It is gratifying to the Republicans of the country to realized that this great assembly was marked by harmony and emphasized by the largest measure of enthusiasm. From every section of this vast domain were representatives of the party all united as to the chief candidate and the policy on which the canvass shall be conducted. There were no bickerings, no factional quarrels, no contest of candidates representing divergent views, but all was peace, unity and confidence.

The platform on which the candidates will go before the people for their suffrages has been constructed by men of one mind, and presents the issue squarely and strongly.

The opening address by Hon. Elihu Root was a declaration that will appeal direct to the unbiased thinkers of the country. It was a masterly oration as well as an exposition of party principles.

Roosevelt and Fairbanks will be a strong ticket and the choice will be ratified and endorsed by the people next November.

TAYLOR---LIEB.

Pretty Nuptial Event That Occurred on Wednesday at 6 P. M.

A very pretty home wedding occurred on Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the brides parents on Willowbank street. Samuel S. Taylor, formerly of Bellefonte but now of New York city was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Katherine Lieb, the pretty and accomplished daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. Mitchell Lieb of this place.

It was a quiet event there being no best man or bridesmaid. It was just 6 o'clock when the happy couple took their position before Rev. John A. Wood Jr., of the Methodist church, who in the presence of about forty assembled guests pronounced them man and wife.

The bride was attired in a wedding gown of white silk mull and carried a boquet of white roses. During the ceremony and later at the reception which was held Christy Smith's famous orchestra furnished the music. The wedding decorations were pink and white roses.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, mostly of silver, china, cut glass and linen.

After a sumptuous wedding supper and delightful reception Mr. and Mrs. Taylor took the 8:16 train for an extended wedding tour to Washington and Old Point Comfort. Later they will locate in New York City where the groom is Secretary and Treasurer of the Titus Supply Company.

Among the guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazier, Wilkinsburg; John McMurray and sister, Nellie, Altoona.

BELLEFONTE'S PROPOSED SCHOOL BUILDING

Which Was Designed by Robert Cole and Was Accepted by School Board.

We give below a cut of the proposed new school building. The plans of the intended improvement have been adopted but the probabilities are that work will not be commenced on any part of the building, except perhaps the foundation, until next spring. Arrangements will, no doubt be made during the fall and winter so that work on the new part will begin very early in 1905.

The purpose of the board is to rearrange the interior of the Stone building and add to the rear quite an extensive addition. The new part will contain a fine large room now much needed for the High School, and will have connected with it all needed recitation rooms, library room and other conveniences that necessarily belong to a well equipped High School. Beside these four new rooms for lower grade schools will be provided. In the rearrangement of the old building, the whole second floor will be used in connection with the High School.

When the improvement is completed board has enterprise and energy enough to provide better school facilities for the children of the borough.

The people of this town can not well afford to allow their schools to fall behind those of other communities. We have long boasted, not only of our intelligence but of our wealth, of our influence and standing in the state; of our governors, lawyers, judges, and generals. We boast now that as our boys who engage in any business or profession succeed. Much of this comes from the manner in which they have been educated and trained. We therefore congratulate the board on this move, and bespeak for it the hearty and earnest support of our people.

When completed this building will be one of the finest school edifices in Central Pennsylvania. The plans and design are the work of Architect Robert Cole, of Bellefonte, whose reputation is State-wide. Many of the handsomest public and private buildings in Central Pennsylvania bear and stamp of his handiwork, a sure guarantee that Bellefonte's new the High School will be located at the proper place. We are informed that when the brick building was put up about twenty years ago the provisions made for this school in that building was only temporary.

The High School room was not therefore made as large as such rooms usually are and was built in such a way that it could be easily converted into rooms for lower grade schools.

This school has more than outgrown the provisions made for it at that time and there are many reasons why the contemplated improvement should be made. Some of the lower grade of schools are stuck around in little rooms and buildings never intended for school purposes, nor are they fit for such purposes, because they in no way conform to the ordinary rules of health or contribute to the happiness of the pupils. If we would have good healthy children we should have all school rooms, not only large, airy, and well lighted but well ventilated. Such is not the case, and we are glad the school building will be all that is promised for it.

The new school building will be built of stone corresponding to the old stone building. It will contain nineteen rooms in all. There will be four rooms in the basement, two for manual training. The first floor will contain six school rooms and one recitation room. The second floor will contain the large and commodious High School room 47x71 feet. There will also be four recitation rooms and a library on this floor.

The third floor will contain a handsome laboratory. Each floor will have ample cloak rooms, book rooms and lavatories.

The exterior appearance of the new building will be unusually handsome and imposing. There will be four handsome entrances to the building from Linn, Allegheny, Lamb and Spring street.

When done it will stand as a credit to Bellefonte and a monument to the enterprise and progress of the present Bellefonte School Board.

Shaffer-Hazel Reunion.

The Shaffer-Hazel reunion was held at Hecla Park Wednesday June 15. The day was an ideal one, and the attendance far larger than last year.

Ex-Sheriff B. F. Schaeffer, of Nittany, president of the association, called the assembly to order at 10 a. m. and made the announcements for the day.

Historical Committee made its report by its Chairman, Miss Allison. It gave an interesting, complete and minute report of the Schaeffer connection.

At the afternoon session the chairman announced that an historical address would next be delivered by Frederick Kurtz whom the chairman introduced for that purpose. He was followed by Rev. Dr. Holloway, and by Rev. Crow, both speakers giving interesting talks. The President then arose and for half an hour spoke in a very entertaining manner of events in the history of the country that were quite interesting, and eulogised the women as having been important agents in all. The officers for the next year were then chosen as follows: President—B. F. Schaeffer; secretary—Ammon Hazel; Treasurer—Uriah Schaeffer. Executive committee: J. B. Hazel, M. F. Hazel S. H. Schaeffer, and Ellis Schaeffer, chairman. The members of historical committee are the same as chosen last year.

The Zion band discoursed charming music, and the ladies of the reunion had the tables set as if to entertain princes. The entire affair was most enjoyable.

—We have a fine me of cured fruits, California evaporated peaches at, 10c 12c 15c and 18c per pound, handsome prunes at 8c 10c 12c and 15c, fine apricots at 15c and 18c per pound.

Co. Constance said that previous to their trouble last fall he had been in love with Miss Rothrock and that he had saved up $100 and he had hoped to induce Miss Rothrock to elope with him to Pittsburg and be married.

The reporter questioned Constance in regard to the shoes which Detective Rightnour found at the shanty when he made the arrest and which he says Constance admitted to him that he wore on Sunday night and which fit the tracks made by the fleeing incendiary in the Rothrock garden. Constance now says that these shoes belong to his brother Jim and that he never had them on. They were a new pair and his brother wore them that day for the first time.

When Constance was placed in jail Monday he became very unruly and was evidently trying to feign insanity. He smashed a chair and made a noise generally. He claimed to be sick and wanted a doctor and would not eat the food sent into him. Rigid discipline and a refusal to grant his requests has brought him to time and now he is quite docile. He said that in the old country in order to get out of serving in the army he ate a lot of cigar stumps and they affected his heart and he has never recovered from the affects of it.

Constance is confined in the steel cell the strongest in the jail and has for a cell-mate George Henderson, the burglar, who was captured while in the act of robbing the store of J. Howard Turner at Julian. Henderson has about recovered from the gun shot wound in the eye which merchant Turner gave him. Both men were smoking cigars and seemed to be taking it easy. Henderson staid in the back of the cell and would not come to the front to talk to the reporter. Constance was a little diffident but when he got started seemed willing to talk and laughed and joked with the reporter.

Constance says that he wants a hearing. He has no attorney and says he has no money to pay one. In contradiction to this there is a story afloat that he is the son of a millionaire Italian.

His father is reputed to be one of the noblemen of Italy, and that the son was compelled to leave his native country for some escapade committed before coming to America. It is positively known that the fellow is in frequent receipt of remittances from Italy, and it is also known that he doesn't do any work by which to earn any money, and yet he seems to be supplied with it at all times. The conclusion is that he must get it from somewhere without earning it.

MISS ROTHROCK AT DUBOIS.

Miss Mattie Rothrock is visiting in DuBois and Thursday's DuBois Morning Journal gives her story of the unfortunate affair.

"Yes, I am the girl he intended to incinerate," was the reply made by Miss Mattie Rothrock to a Journal representative, last evening when calling at the place where she is visiting, at 13 Olive avenue, this city. The story of this terrible crime appeared in yesterday's Journal.

Miss Rothrock is the intelligent daughter of David Rothrock, of near Bellefonte, whose house was set on fire Sunday night last, presumably by an Italian named Dominick Constance, who has since been arrested and is now languishing in the Centre county jail at Bellefonte.

The lady in question is a sister to David Eber Rothrock, 13 Olive avenue where she has been visiting for the past ten days and was therefore not at home Sunday night when the attempted house-burning took place, although the Italian in question did not know otherwise but what she was at home at the time.

"Did you ever show this man Constance any consideration whatever?" was asked of Miss Rothrock by the Journal representative.

"Not in the least. In fact, I always abhorred him whenever he came in sight of the house if I happened to be at home," she said. "In fact, I don't like any of these foreigners, and Buffalo Run valley seems to be literally alive with them, since the American Limestone Co., is employing so many of them in that section of the country."

Miss Rothrock was so visibly agitated over the situation that the Journal representative felt disinclined to question her in a direct manner.

Instead of returning home today, as Miss Rothrock had intended, her friends are endeavoring to have her remain in DuBois for some days yet, at least until she gets over the nervous spell into which this trouble has brought her. She is not overly strong physically, and her returning home just at this time will in no way alleviate the unpleasant exigency of the case.

It is a most peculiar affair. No doubt had the offender known that Miss Mattie was in DuBois Sunday night last, the attempt to burn the house in which he supposed she was would not have been made. Those in the house at the time were the aged parents, an invalid son, Frank, and a 13-year-old grand daughter, Hazel Caddy.

Passed Into the Great Beyond.

As the hands of the clock pointed to the midnight hour on Sunday the spirit life of Mrs. Charles E. Rapp took its flight into the realms of glory.

She has been a patient sufferer for the past two years with consumption which she contracted by taking a heavy cold.

Kind, loving with a sweet disposition and always ready to do an act of charity is the reason she leaves so many friends to mourn her death. Her whole life has been lovingly devoted to her church and family, and when the end came and she was anointed for death by Father McArdle, her life passed peacefully out and went home to live with her Heavenly Father whom she loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rapp's maiden name was Margaret Tobin, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Tobin, of Snow Shoe, and was born in that little village about 35 years ago. They have resided in Philadelphia for the past eight years. She was brought to Bellefonte just one month ago and taken to her aunts home, Mrs. Helen Brown on corner of Logan and Allegheny street, where every comfort possible was given her by loving friends.

Besides her hosts of friends she leaves to mourn her death her husband, one daughter Frances, her father and mother and the following brothers and sisters John Tobin, Mrs. John Harrington, Mrs. James Sullivan of Snow Shoe, Michael Tobin of Oil City, Mrs. Patrick Hayes of Sioux City, Iowa. She was a member of Sacred Heart of Jesus, and of the Blessed Virgin Mary Sodality of Philadelphia. The body was taken to Snow Shoe where services were held in the Catholic church on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock conducted by Rev. Cochran. Interment in Catholic cemetery at that place.

Children's Day Services.

One of the best children's Day services ever held in Howard was that on Sunday evening in the United Evangelical Church. The church had been very beautifully decorated for the occasion under the direction of the pastor Rev. D. A. Artman. Mrs. Dr. Hensyl arranged the program and trained the Children in the various exercises. The Children all did their parts unusually well. The exercises consisted of soloe, quartettes, anthems and choral singing, recitations, dialogues and exercises which were intensely interesting throughout. The large church was crowded to its utmost capacity and many were turned away for lack of even standing room. The male quartette consisting of Rev. D. A. Artman, William W. Weber, Geo. Hensyl and James Kain sang one of their most beautiful selections. The solo by Miss Maud Thomas was sung in her usual pleasing manner. It would be impossible to mention all the excellent features of the programme and difficult to decide which was the best as the whole service was good from beginning to end.

LITTLE TRIXY.

BLANCHARD.

Tuesday of last week Franklin R. Stover died very suddenly of heart failure at North Bend, where he was doing business for the Lock Haven Paper Mill Co. He was standing on a box car with a friend who saw him reel, and who caught him, laid him down and signalled the car to stop when it was found life was extinct. A physician was called who pronounced his death due to apoplexy. He left his home Tuesday apparently in the best of health, intending to return on Saturday, which makes the shock of his death to his family almost unbearable. The deceased was a very agreeable gentleman, energetic and progressive and who had the confidence and regard of all with whom he came in contact, and his sudden death, is not only a severe blow to the family but to the town as well. He was 51yrs of age and leaves to mourn their loss a devoted wife and two children, Mrs. Frank Smith of Johnsonburg; and Christian Stover of Philadelphia; also four sisters and five brothers. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the house and was largely attended by neighbors and friends. Rev. G. S. West officiated, who based his remarks on 2 Sam'l. 14-4, "Our lives are as water spilled on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again." By request of the family the beautiful hymn "Saved by Grace," was rendered by the following persons, Mr. Milton Kunes, Joseph Pletcher, Laura Bechdel and Mrs. V. Ridge which closed the services at the house. The Free Masons of which Mr. Stover was a member, then took charge of the remains and concluded the services at the grave, about thirty members of the Masonic Order being present from Bellefonte, also several from Lock Haven. Interment in the Baptist cemetery.

We are glad to know that we have one man in our village Mr. Frank Kessinger who regards brotherly love toward his neighbor more than merely the getting of dollars and cents, inasmuch as he would not run his Saw Mill on Saturday, out of respect for Mr. Stover. We need more of such men to make a good community.

SNOW SHOE.

Ray D. Gilliland has just returned from Lock Haven where he has been cultivating a taste for the famous Crawford "peaches."

We have at last found the real cause of the precipitated moisture of the past week. John P Kelley left Monday for Philadelphia to attend the commencement of St. Joseph college and his fair maiden on the hill in her lonliness wept coupious tears which darkened the skies and flooded the hillside, lest some misfortune should befall her little ward 'ere he returns to her watchful care.

Prof. D. Paul Fortney was a welcome visitor in town Thursday last. The scribe was favored with his company a part of the time.

Snow Shoe seems to possess some sort of a drawing card for tonsorial artists Two new "parlors" have been opened up within the past week Packer and Barr have a neat establishment opposite Mountain House, the last one has been opened near the corner of Fourth and Olive streets by the Lucas-Washington syndicate.

Just a word about the new attraction: Bellefonte certainly will have to adopt a different swagger if they don't wish to be thoroughly outclassed by Snow Shoe We hope we will not be censured for boasting because we merely give you the uncolored facts. Outsiders could not, of course, be expected to be cognizant of our intense activity for, owing to our tremendous pace, undoubtedly they cannot "see us for dust." The plans of the Driving Association seem be materializing and are assuming some definite form A half mile race track is contemplated. The site has not been definitely fixed upon but preliminary surveys have been made by Division Sup't. Snyder and Division Engineer Holmes, of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co., assisted by L. M. Kelley, of Kelley Bros Coal Co. On the lands of Jno. G. Uzzle adjoining Rebecca's Park. Under the energetic but conservative management of Mr. W. D. O'Brien the undertaking is bound to succeed. —— We were just listening. We cannot yet hear the "clang! clang!" of trolley cars but we are sure Bellefonte is not ahead of us in this particular.

Mr and Mrs. W. E. Snyder, the Misses Effie and Edith Budinger, and the Messrs. A. B Budinger, M. J. Leisenring and Seth Brumm attended the dance held at Bellefonte in the Armory Monday night.

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN.—One Conscience. Small sized, comparatively new, and in excellent condition, never having been used to any great extent—belonged to Snow Shoe Had Snow Shoe not been thus devoid of conscience she would have been more considerate of Bellefonte's feelings and would not have beaten her so badly in the Teacher's World's Fair contest. Liberal reward to the finder.

County Sup't. C. L. Gramley held the annual teachers examination in the grammar room Tuesday. He did not have as large a class as in former years and among the candidates for certificates there was only one man who seems to indicate that in this township male teachers will be in demand.

Al Steele's Uncle Tom's Cabin pitched their mammoth canvass tent on the show ground last Thursday and proceeded to enchant the natives and aliens into this wonderful moral show by making a parade through the thoroughfares of the town. The parade had the desired effect and the way the people streamed into town was a parade in itself. Some arrived by land, some by sea, some by the "auto" while many arrived on Walkers hack. But the stream of immigrants came so fast and thick from Moshannon that Al Steele and the natives imagined it was a band of Russians swooping down from the north and the town would have became panic stricken if it had not been for the cool-headedness of Jim Corum who saved the day and is now lauded as the hero of Al Steele's cabin.

Hard hitting (by Peale) poor fielding and indifference cost the Snow Shoe team the game with Peale last Saturday. Peale hit Shay at will and the infield failed to give him any support. The team played the poorest article of base ball this season and showed that we need more harmony in the team, systematic practice and more vim in playing if we wish to have a winning team this season. Quirk played a star game for the Snow Shoe team and was the only one that could hit Fields. The score was 15-26 favor of Peale.

Once in a while some one who has traveled to the very edge of the danger line of stomach disease stops just in time to save his health. But the majority of people go across the line, and slight symptoms of indigestion grow to disease of the stomach, involving the other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Indigestion and other forms of stomach "trouble" are perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the whole body by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"I have been suffering for about eight years," writes Mrs. H. Pierce, of Millsprings, Ky. "Have had several doctors to treat me—some for female weakness and others for stomach trouble, but received no relief. When I wrote you for advice I was hardly able to work, and you advised me what to do. I took nine bottles, five of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' four of 'Favorite Prescription,' also two vials of the 'Pellets.' Dr. Pierce's medicines will do all that you claim for them. Believe I would have been in my grave if I had not taken them."

EPWORTH LEAGUERS.

Annual Convention of Altoona District in Session at Tyrone.

The thirteenth annual convention of the Altoona district Epworth League of the Central Pennsylvania conference of the Methodist church convened Wednesday in the First church, Tyrone. The forenoon was given entirely to the registration of delegates, of whom there are now more than a hundred present, with new arrivals on every incoming train

The convention went into session at 2 o'clock with the president, R. A. Zentmyer, in the chair. After a devotional service Rev. N. B. Smith, of Birmingham, gave a ten minute talk on "The Junior League—Its Mission," then Miss Mae Moore recited "The Golden City" Mrs. M. C. Buck, of Fleming, gave a paper on "Opportunities of the Junior League then Pansy Cowher, of Tyrone rendered a solo, and a recitation, "Nobody's Child," was given by Mae Deity, of Howard followed by a very good paper by Miss Belle Agnew, of Tyrone, on the subject, "The Duty of the Seniors to the Juniors."

The convention opens with every prospect of being one of much interest to those who attend and benefit to the church in general throughout the district. At Wednesday evening's session Rev. John H. Daugherty delivered a welcome address and Rev. Morris E Swartz, of Patton, responded.

The sunrise prayer meeting was in charge of Rev. J. V. Royer, of Frugality, and was largely attended on the part of the delegates, and was a very interesting session.

The devotional services were in charge of Rev. Geo. Warren, who announced, "Work, for the Night is Coming" was sung, when he read a portion of the first chapter of first epistle of John and led the convention in a fervent prayer. The minutes of the sessions of yesterday were read by the secretary and approved.

After the reading of the minutes Rev. M. E. Swartz offered a resolution that this convention send greetings to the Harrisburg district convention now in session in Harrisburg, which was ordered by a vote of the convention. A motion was made that this convention recognized the importance of sub-district conventions and that we encourage their continuation. Rev. J. R. Reiley, of Clearfield, gave a talk on the subject "How can the League help the Pastor." He showed that the support of the pastor may be greatly aided by a faithful Leagner. Under general discussion of this subject, Rev. J. K. Knisely, of Houtzdale, spoke some very helpful words, and was followed by Rev. J. V. Royer, of Frugality, Rev. John Horning, of Duncansville, and several delegates. The importance of this subject being fully realized its time was extended and Rev. J. Ellis Bell gave a very helpful talk and many good suggestions were thrown out by many delegates

The next topic on the program was the reports of district officers. Miss Mary Reeseman reported for the spiritual condition of the Leagues of the district which shows the conditions very gratifying. Miss Belle Agnew reported for the department of world evangelism Miss Anna Bartholomew, of Centre Hall, reported for the mercy and help department, much good work being done. Rev. J. V. Royer reported for the fourth department, of the work, the literary and social department, much work being done in this line of work.

LIGHTNING PLAYS PRANKS.

A Ball of Fire Drops into Crusher, Burning Workman.

The lightning was very frisky at Salona Wednesday evening. A large ash tree which stands in front of the German Reformed church on the Main street was struck by lightning and pretty well shattered. Mrs. B. F. Krape, who lives nearly opposite felt the shock very sensibly. The Commercial telephone wires pass under this tree and the shock put every 'phone of this company in the village out of business. The farm house of I. C. Stoner, adjoining the village, in which there had been a 'phone but removed, but which yet contained a wire, had a hole torn in the side but did not ignite it. The electricity passed on to the stone quarry where a seeming ball of fire jumped from the wires into the crusher, at which a foreign workman was standing and scorched his shoe but did not otherwise injure him. It then leaped into the quarry and knocked another workman to the ground. Further up the street at Robert Fulton's home a calf was tied in a lot, which was seen to fall to the ground and for a short time while struggle, but soon jumped up again seemingly none the worse for the shock. Consternation reigned for a short time among the quiet villagers, but all are rejoicing that so little damage was done to her citizens.

A Series of Misfortunes.

That misfortunes never come singly was proven conclusively in the family of William Homan, living east of Centre Hall. Sunday evening June 12th, Mr. Homan's hired boy on returning from children's day services, found some one endeavoring to enter the house. He quickly remounted his bicycle and went to meet his employer, who was driving a span of spirited mules. The mules took fright at the approaching bicyclist and started to run away. Some of the occupants of the spring wagon jumped for their lives, and others, among them Mrs. Homan and baby, remained on the vehicle until it was upset in a fence corner, and received slight injuries. The mules ran home.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

TELEPHONE COMPANY.

Holds Annual Meeting and Elects Officers and Board of Directors.

On Thursday and Friday of last week the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Huntingdon & Clearfield Telepone Co., was held in the general offices in the Murray building at Clearfield say the Raftsman's Journal, of June 15 bringing together a notable gathering of business men and capitalists, including W. D. Barnard, of Philadelphia; G. C. Irish and Thomas J. Lee, of Philipsburg; E. M. Yarnell, of Philadelphia, treasurer of the East Electric Construction Co.; Hon. James Kerr and Nelson E. Robb, of Bellefonte, district superintendent of the United Telephone & Telegraph Co.

In addition to other business the following board of directors was elected: Ellis L. Orvis, Bellefonte, president; A. W. Lee, Clearfield; vice president; G. H. Smith, Rembrandt Peale, Thomas J. Lee and W. H. Denlinger.

The report showed the development of the H. & C Co., during its year of operation to have been marvelous. Over 175 miles of pole lines have been constructed on which are strung over 1500 miles of wire. The company has established exchanges at Clearfield, Philipsburg, Osceola, Houtzdale, Winburne and Patton, and one of the notable advantages of this system is the fact that at all of the exchanges the service is continued night and day, Sunday and weekdays without a single hour of interruption or suspension. The company has more than 1400 subscribers at the various points on its system, of which Clearfield boasts of more than 500 and Philipsburg 350.

The immense amount of business and the rapid development of new territory keepe a large force of workmen constantly on the pay roll. At the present time new territory is being developed rapidly and within the next few months several new exchanges will be opened up. It is the ultimate aim of the company to give a through service to Pittsburg as well as to other large centres of population. Johnstown has already been reached, and while a service to Pittsburg has not yet been opened, it will be an accomplished feat before long.

The Holdup at Antelope's Run

By CURRAN R. GREENLEY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

The cattle were quiet. Gerald slipped to the ground at a safe distance and eased the cinches to give the black pony a breathing space. A rim of silver grew and widened along the east, and as Gerald watched the moon swung up the sky and the south wind came rushing cool and sweet against his hot brow. How like to that night three years ago, when they had stood together 'neath the palms at St. Augustine! In place of the loneliness of plain and sky—the Dream City, jewel crowned, the gray old fort, the shimmering moon silvered sea—and Margaret. One night in a man's life, when she had answered "Yes" to the story he told, out there on the crumbling walls of San Marco. He remembered how they had watched the little blue clad figure as it toiled up with the fateful message, the message that dashed the sweetness from the orange scented night, hushed the music of the sea, leaving him alive to only the sense of ruin—utter ruin!

Three hours later he was on the way to New York, leaving only a brief note: "I cannot hold you to your promise. I am a beggar." He knew now the wrong that he had offered her womanhood. But then, with the old man who had been more comrade than father, lying with a bullet hole through his brain, there seemed no other way. It had been a maze, commencing with the pitiful funeral, with himself as a sole mourner; then the long days when every hour disclosed the wrong that had been done to women and helpless children. A very madness of speculation had possessed his father, and the worthless paper seemed to grow into mountains of guilt and shame. Settlements, judgments, foreclosures, and there came a day when he stood with barely enough left to take him west out of sight of his kin.

Five long years. They were filled with life and movement and aflash with barbaric color wrought in strange pattern of border warfare, night raids when Comanche and Apache were "out." But the Blue Star ranch had prospered. The cattle had thriven and grown from scattered bunches into a great herd, of which Gerald was half owner. Tomorrow they would start on the long trail to the market places.

The black pony sniffed the air suspiciously at a rustle in the dried sage grass. A shadow came out from among the shadows and stood upright, and as the blanket slipped from her shoulders Gerald saw that it was Juana, the Mexican wife of Comanche Jake. He knew the woman. Only a week before he had come to her rescue just in time to save her from Comanche Jake's bowie knife, and now spoke to her kindly. "You, Juana? What is the matter now? Is Jake after you again?"

Juana crept still closer. "Senor! Senor! For the love of Our Lady, call out your men and ride to Antelope's run. They"—with a twist of her hand toward the distant tepee in the mesquite—"they are over there—half a dozen like Jake, all mad with the mescal—and they go to rob the Anguilla stage when it passes Antelope's run. Senor, they will kill—they'll kill me when they find I've told, but Caracas Johnny came in at nightfall from up above and told how he got a message while at Anguilla in cipher from a pal of his in Santa Fe, and it said there was government gold a-comin' through and that there was a woman, too, who was rich and had money along with her. They've got it all planned how to do for the driver and the guards, and Caracas Johnny is to have the woman. Senor, for the love of the mother that bore you, get out your men and save her or kill her. It's twenty miles to Antelope's run, but Jake and the boys won't start till midnight and they'll be drunk with the mescal."

"And how about you?" asked Gerald.

Juana gathered her blanket closer. "Senor, if you let Jake come back, he will know I told you. Then God and Our Lady have mercy." And the squat figure slipped away into the night.

He did not question the truth of the woman's statement. There was work for the Blue Star outfit at Antelope's run. It worried him that this should have come just as they needed all their best men for the big drive, but where a woman was at stake there could be no question of cattle.

Ten minutes of hurried galloping to and fro and Gerald led off his cattle force, leaving a half dozen, out the gate. As they shot up the Santa Fe trail his watch showed 11 o'clock by the moon's rays.

The swift ponies lay down to their work and the earth rolled back beneath their hoofs as they rode in the quick cavalry trot over miles of sage grass and white sand, past prairie dog towns, where the alert tenants whisked out of sight like so many small ghosts, past the dry arroyas like white scars on the face of the plain. On and on. Here a bunch of mesquite, gnome-like in the spectral light, clumps of prickly pear and weird contortions of the giant cactus—ten miles, fifteen, and they began the ascent where the plain rolls up toward the foothills. They could see the highway, where it wound like a snake, seeking its lair in the shadow of the trees that begin at Antelope's run.

Gerald pulled out his watch. The stage was due at 3 o'clock and they had a little less than an hour to wait. He turned to the men: "Boys, we will ride on and meet them; then there will be no chance of their getting us mixed with the attacking force."

There was as yet no sign of Comanche Jake and his men; but, as Juana had said, they would be likely to stay with the mescal until the last minute. Gerald and his men rode slowly up the trail to a point about three miles beyond the run. Then they drew rein and waited until they heard the roll of wheels and the thud of horses' feet as the stage clattered down the trail. There were two guards on the outside with their rifles cocked across their knees. Gerald rode out and, as he raised his hand, a bullet whistled by his head. "Don't fire; there's trouble ahead of you," and the driver pulled up sharply. A few words explained the situation. One of the guards went to the door and talked with some one inside; then the word was given to move on. Gerald and his men rode just behind, their Winchesters ready.

Seemingly the road was clear. Gerald almost doubted if Juana had told the truth. But suddenly the shadows were alive with men that sprang at the bridles of the leaders, cutting the traces; from all sides the hooting, yelling, drink crazed Mexicans swarmed like wasps. There were more of them than Juana had said, and as Gerald plunged into the thick of it he made straight for Caracas Johnny. It was too close work for the rifles—a hand to hand duel with the terrible knives. Short, swift, indescribably brutal, a bare five minutes and it was over; but one of Gerald's best men would ride no more, and Gerald himself was bleeding profusely from an ugly cut between the ribs, where the bowie of Caracas Johnny had searched for his heart. Thanks to the mescal, Johnny's aim was bad, and Johnny would spend many days at Santa Fe in consequence thereof.

Comanche Jake lay beneath his pony, a lifeless heap from which Juana had nothing to fear. But the guards were all hacked to death where they had fought to protect their treasure bags. Gerald leaned against the black pony, faint from loss of blood, but fighting it off, while he saw that those of the Mexicans that did not get away were safely bound.

With the last knot tied, the dead and wounded were to be disposed of. It was gray dawn when at last the stage was ready to go on to Anguilla.

Gerald had fancied that a smothered scream came from the stage when the fighting began. Since then it had been quiet inside, but as he tried to mount the pony he was not surprised to hear a woman's voice. She came toward him through the gray light, tall straight and strangely familiar. "I cannot let you go without thanking you for your timely rescue, for my very life itself," she was beginning, when he turned, and the light fell full upon his face. He heard her catch her breath, like a stifled sob—"Jack! Jack Gerald!" And there, before the eyes of the old driver and the Mexicans, she fell to crying in his outstretched arms for very gladness, while he, with the dead men at their feet and the wounded moaning in the shadow of the trees, Jack Gerald, bowed his head and thanked the God of his childhood that had sent him to the rescue of the Anguilla stage.

English Battle Axes.

What was the great weapon used by the Englishman at Hastings? With what weapon was he armed for the most part when he dealt such deadly blows upon the Norman horsemen in the earlier part of the day? As to the answer to this question we are left in no doubt. History and tradition alike ascribe his long resistance to one weapon, and one weapon alone, the famous Danish ax.

With one exception every single act of valor which the Englishman achieved at Hastings was wrought with the ax or the gisarme. As the Norman weapon was the lance, so the English was the ax. "The Normans," says Harold to his brother Gurth, "are good vassals, valiant on foot and on horse. They have long lances and swords, and we have sharp axes and great edged bills." A few lines further on we read that the English were armed with "hache or gisarme," "with axes and well cutting gisarmes."—Contemporary Review.

Not Square.

The Teuton is a long time in learning British idioms. One who had been here for a year or more and could speak some English before his arrival—a very short and corpulent man, by the way—went to his grocer's and paid a bill which had been standing for several weeks.

"Now you are all square, sir."

"I vas vat?"

"You are square, I said."

"I vas square?"

"Yes, you are all square now."

Hans was silent for a moment, then, with reddening face and flashing eyes, he brought his plump fist down upon the counter and said:

"See here, mine frent, I will hav no more peezness mit you. I treat you like a shentleman. I pay my pill, und you make a shoke of me. You say I vas square ven I know I vas round as a parrel. I don't like such shokes. My peezness mit you vas done."—Tit-Bits.

Cotton in Texas and potatoes in Colorado were two of the most profitable crops grown last year.

HOW WOMEN SHOULD REST.

Stop Work in Time. The Afternoon Nap. Regular Out Door Exercise. Change of Occupation a Form of Rest. Necessary Recreation and Relaxation

BY CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK.

Author of "Cradle and Nursery," "First Aid to the Young Housekeepers," "Housekeeping Made Easy," "What to Eat," "In City Tents."

(Copyright, 1904, by Christine Herrick.)

The time seems to have come when American women have to be taught how to rest. They have learned nearly every thing else, but resting is something a good many of them have never had time to acquire.

There is a saying that Providence looks after the lame and the lazy. The implication is, apparently, that the healthy and the industrious know how to take care of themselves. The fact remains, however, that they seldom do. They go until they drop and never seem to have the least idea that they are over-doing until they give out entirely.

One of the first things to be learned about resting is that it is like some other remedies for the ills of this life. It is worth twice as much if taken at an early stage as it is if delayed until the disease has had time to gain ground. The true philosophy of resting is to rest before one is really tired. To know when to stop is as important a part of life's schooling as to learn where to begin. Indeed, the beginning often presents itself, while the stopping place requires searching for.

Our Puritan conscience,—in so many lines a boon, in so many others a bane,—is one of the obstacles in the way of stopping in time. The average busy woman who wants to rest, feels, just because it would be an agreeable sensation, that it must somehow be wrong. She will make sure that she is as tired as she can be before she lays aside her work and takes the few moments' repose she may need. But by the time she come to that stage she is at a period of fatigue when a few moments' rest will do little for her. Her first fancied economy was a mistake,—and she is paying for it, as one does for all mistakes.

I have spoken before in these colums of the harm done by the Puritan conscience. Its effects in making the earnest women scourage herself into over-work is perhaps one of its worst effects. There are many women who need to struggle to attain a state of saving unconscientiousnese. Had they this, perhaps they might know how to rest without making a special study of it.

Said a young man the other day, in my hearing. "I wouldn't have my mother's conscience for anything." "Your mother's conscience!" I said, "Why? She is one of the best women in the world. What can she have on her conscience?"

"Running sores!" returned the youth, promptly. "She has punched it and pricked it so often that it is in a dreadful condition. Mine is just a comfortable callous!"

If more women could establish a "comfortable callous" in their consciences it would be better for them,—and one may add, for those about them. All parties concerned would have more chance to rest. Or, what might be better still would be for the women to learn to apply their conscientiousnes to the rest problem.

How many busy women make a point of taking a little nap every afternoon? Nature seems to indicate the advisability of this by making most persons sleepy immediately after the mid day meal. While the process of digestion is going on there should be a temporary cessation of work. A rest of fifteen minutes or half an hour pays for itself before the day is out. The women should go off by herself, loosen any tight clothing she may be wearing, stretch out on a couch, in a darkened room, shut her eyes and lie still for a fixed time. Even if she does not go to sleep she is sure to be rested. If she is nervous and excited she would do well to have some book of mild interest at hand in which she can read for ten of the thirty m nutes she has allotted herself. This will calm her and fit her for the sleep or rest she is trying to take.

But this is not all she requires. A woman cannot rest simply by stopping work and staying in the house. She needs a great deal more than that. She needs to get out of the house, and when she goes out she must do something that is good for her. Active exercise is as much a desideratum of rest as absolute repose.

The woman who rides a wheel ought never to get really tired. For I do not call it getting tired to have a sensation of healthy weariness in limb and muscle. That is the sort of thing that brings sleep and rest. It is not in the least like the jaded sensation that comes over the woman who has toiled at her household duties all day or who has sat at her sewing until her back and eyes and fingers ache. Anyone who has once known the joys of the road on a good wheel will not tarry in answering when asked if there is any difference between the two kinds of fatigue.

So the woman who wishes to learn how to rest must exercise in the open air.

I have spoken of riding a wheel, because that seems to combine a maximum of exercises and of interest with a minimum of bother. The woman who rides a good chainless wheel with the proper sort of appurtenances in the way of skirt guard and the like, has no toil-some business of wheel and frock cleaning awaiting her when she gets home. She goes out with an easy mind, instead of being tired before she starts by the thought of the unpleasant task that awaits her when she come home and whose anticipation takes the edge off her enjoyment. But if a woman cannot ride a wheel, for any reason,—and the good reasons against almost any woman doing it seem to be growing small by degrees and beautifully less, as the revival of the wheel goes on, she must not on that account stay at home Let her do something else,—walk, tennis, golf. Only let her do something and do it out of doors and do it every day, weather permitting.

Here then are two essentials of rest, repose and outdoor exercise. There are others. One among them is a pet recreation.

Women used to find this sort of thing in embroidery and worsted work. There are some women who do that even now. Others seek it in basketry, and while the uniniated may not be able to comprehend the joys of this particular form of employment, it is a fact that there are many who revel in it. There are others who do bead work and others still who have some one of the many crafts that have drifted into woman's lives of late years. It makes no difference what a woman does,—whether she embroiders or knits or weaves baskets or bead chains or hammers brass or burns wood,—so long as it diverts her. If she doesn't do this she would better play cards or tiddledywinks. The object is of no importance. —"the play's the thing."

The woman should play in other ways, too. She should go to see things that amuse her,—if it be only the circus. She should see a good play when she can, hear good music when it comes her way, indulge in such social jove as present themselves. All have their part in teaching her to rest,—which in its best meaning is a change of occupation. When women have once mastered the science of resting they will do better work, have better husbands and children and bring the nation and the race to a higher level of health and happiness than they occupy at the present.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for anycase of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

KILLED BY A LIVE WIRE.

John Tate, a Telephone Lineman, Meets a Sad Death.

A force of men employed by the Huntingdon and Clearfield Telephone Co. were busy Tuesday morning adjusting wires, and at 8:30 they were about to undertake the work of changing the wires running into the Cottage hospital. These wires in that neighborhood were fastened to the Street Railway Co's poles. John Tate, one of the telephone linemen, ascended a pole to make the proposed change, and in doing so his shoulder came in contact with a live trolly wire. It proved to be one of the sub-station wires leading to Munson, carrying 10,000 voltage. The result was that, in addition to being badly burned, the current was so strong as to mean almost immediate death. The instant the accident occurred another employe began ascending the pole to bring down the unfortunate man, when he suddenly fell to the ground, knocking the other man from the pole also, who narrowly escaped falling on an iron picket fence. Tate was found to be dead when his body was approached.

The deceased, whose age was about 23 years, was a native, it is thought, of Bellefonte. His mother is dead, and his father, one brother and one sister live at Yeagertown, and two or three other brothers, we understand, are living near Pittsburg. For nearly four years he has made his home with Mrs. Dewey at Chester Hill. He formerly worked at the brick plant, but for about ten months has been with the Huntingdon and Clearfield Telephone Co. He was a young man of pleasing qualities, and made many friends here who deeply mourn his sad death. The body will likely be taken to Bellefonte for burial.—Philipsburg Journal.

Later—The unfortunate young man was the son of E. Potter Tate of Fillmore and his remains were brought to Bellefonte Wednesday afternoon and taken to the home of Mr. Bodle at Hunters Park where the funeral will be held today.

One Church Less in Millheim.

The old United Brethren church in this place, recently purchased by Dennis Luse, has been transformed into a double dwelling house, with ample room to accommodate two families. Mr. Luse has been one of the most energetic builders of dwelling houses in Millheim, having built and occupied no less than six different houses during the time he has lived here.

Old age and infirmity has, however, overtaken him and he says this is the last attempt at building he will undertake.

A HEAVY STORM.

A House Damaged by Lightning---Barn Destroyed at Howard.

A heavy rain storm passed over this section of country Monday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. There was only one sharp stroke of lightning but it left its mark. It struck the telephone wires near the residence of Samuel Gault on Curtin street, passed down into the telephone in the Gault house tearing it to pieces, boards were ripped off the wainscoting near the telephone. The bolt then passed along the floor to the east end of the house where it tore off some more of the wainscoting.

The air was literally charged with electricity. Gaults house was filled with smoke.

Mrs. Gault and the other members of the family who were in the house at the time were stunned by the shock but not seriously injured. Mrs. Gault's favorite seat was at a window near the telephone and where she had been sewing not five minutes before the lightning struck the wires. Had she been in her accustomed place she undoubtedly would have been seriously injured if not killed.

A neighboring house was also filled with smoke from the same stroke of lightning but no damage was done.

The lightning also struck a telephone pole at Centre County Bank and knocked down but did not kill a horse that was tied near it.

BARN DESTROYED.

About 4 o'clock Monday afternoon the lightening struck the large barn on the farm of Robert H. Mann in Curtin township and it was totally destroyed with a large amount of hay, grain and valuable agriculture implements. The live stock was saved. The loss is quite heavy.

A Double Wedding.

A very pretty double wedding took place at the United Evangelical parsonage at Milesburg Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Elmer Aikey was united in in marriage to Miss Gertrude Felemlee and Charles Tierney took for his bride Miss Effie Bickel. All the parties are from Curtin, Centre county. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Ward K. Shultz.
